SEATTLE, Wash. (April 24, 2007) – For the 2nd year, Another Source, a Seattle-based employment referral service company, is recognizing the regions' best companies to work for quarterly. The companies given this distinction by the regional employment referral leader are chosen based on specific criteria that make these firms the best to work for from referred employees' perspectives.

Marcie Glenn, Another Source President, implemented the Best Companies to Work For recognition in 2006 as a way to showcase the clients Another Source works with to find profiled, capable candidates. The program helps to highlight the area firms seeking talented people with much to offer its employees. Judging criteria is based on retention and employee programs, company and employee benefits, recruiting practices and company goals and is conducted every quarter.
